Isolation. Withdrawal. Loneliness.

These are common feelings, but it's when they become extreme that they can lead to other issues.

The need to belong.

Is something we all share. Sometimes people who feel excluded seek a sense of belonging on the fringes of society.

Groups who support using violence to achieve change often use the desire 'to belong' to recruit members.

Acceptance. Inclusion. Support.

It sounds so simple, but sometimes all it takes to protect someone is one person who listens.

By listening without judgement, you can help someone you care about find positive support from others and a sense of belonging in their community, rather than seeking connection from groups that practice violent extremism.

What you can do.

Step Together is here to help.

Our specialist team of qualified counsellors can help explain how you can provide better support for those in need and connect you to services in your community that can provide further help.
